

In Magellan's time, we still would have flattened the competition.

When Ferdinand Magellan was plying his trade back in the 1500s, chances are his customers were anxiously awaiting the day they would be able to track and trace their shipments online anywhere in the world with a click of a mouse, as Air Canada Cargo does today.

Well, then again, maybe they weren't. They were probably too busy worrying about their small package falling off the edge of the earth.

Here at Air Canada Cargo, we personally guarantee that we'll never let that happen to your shipment.

Too bad we can't say that about the competition.
