

This is not re-tirement.

This is making way for Generation A.

At Air Canada, we don't just tape up the old warhorses and put 'em back to work. We put 'em out to pasture.

In this case, we've replaced Generation D - our old fleet of DC-8s - with Generation A: the Airbus Generation.

In fact, Air Canada's Generation A is the most modern fleet in North America, comprising 53 Airbus A-319s, 25 A-320s and 32 A-340s, with more routes from Canada to Europe and Asia and more capacity for your shipments.

Whoops - forgot to mention Generation B. Our underage fleet of Boeing 747s and 767s carry you to more destinations daily and non-stop than Aeroflot and PIA combined.

So make way for the whippersnappers, because at Air Canada Cargo nowadays, you're more likely to find tickets to the local Rave than for the Senior Bake-off.
